BARRINGER

BARRINGER HIGH SCHOOL

A photograph of a sunset or sunrise over a body of water. The sky is filled with a bright, warm glow of orange and yellow light, with a prominent vertical lens flare streak running down the center. The horizon line is visible, separating the dark, silhouetted land and trees in the foreground from the shimmering water. The overall mood is serene and atmospheric.

A photograph of a landscape. In the foreground, there is a large, dark, dense bush or small tree. The ground is a flat, open field. In the background, there is a line of trees or a distant shore. The sky is very bright and hazy, with a pinkish or reddish tint. The overall image has a grainy, vintage quality.

Don't you feel a change coming from another side of time, breaking down the walls of silence lifting shadows from your mind.
Placing back the missing mirrors that before you couldn't find filling mysteries of emptiness that yesterday left behind.

Don't you feel the day is coming
that will stay and remain when your children see the answers that you saw the same when the clouds have all gone there will be no more rain and the beauty of all things is uncovered again.

Don't you feel the day is coming
and it won't be too soon when the people of the world can all live in one room when we shake off the ancient chains of our tomb
we will all be born again
of the eternal womb.

And we all know it's better
Yesterday has past now let's all start the living for the one that's going to last.

---Cat Stevens

BARRINGER

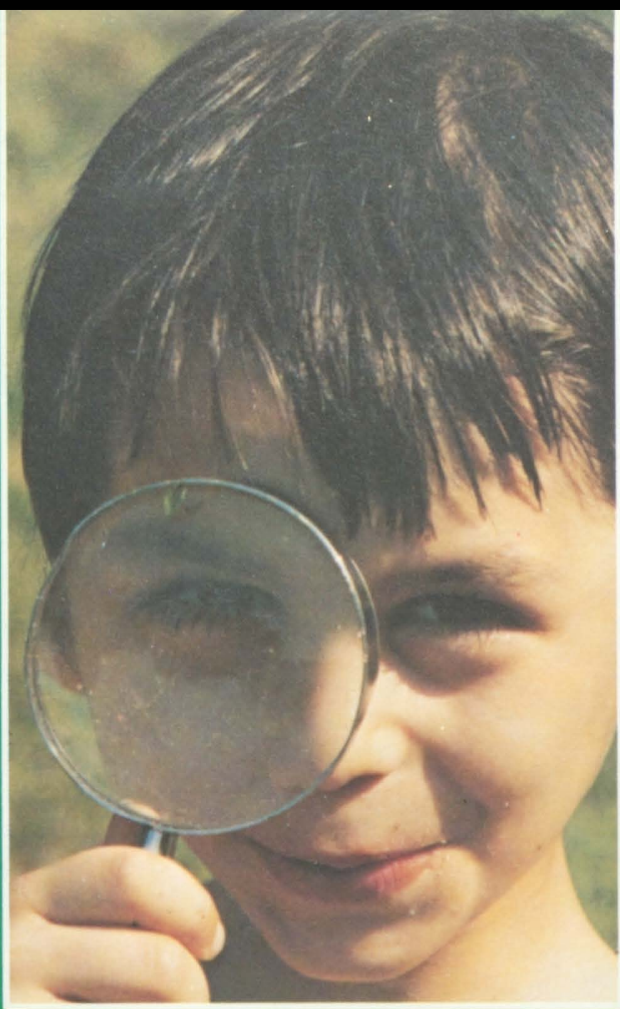

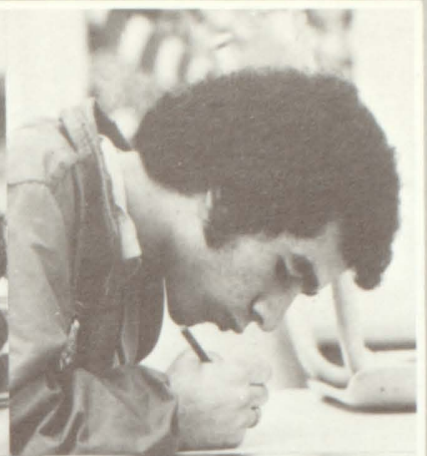

A child's innocence flows
Bringing a stream of love
Which knows no bounds.
He loves the essence of humanity
Which all men possess,
Though it may be hidden.
The child doesn't love color,
Or speech or body
For every man's soul
Is a neutral shade of gray.
He experiences joy in others,
And cherishes their dreams as his own.
He can't understand hatred
Because his mind won't grasp such horrors.
The child lives in wonder of life.
He grows from other's lives.
He sees beyond vision
To a world of beauty, peace
And love.

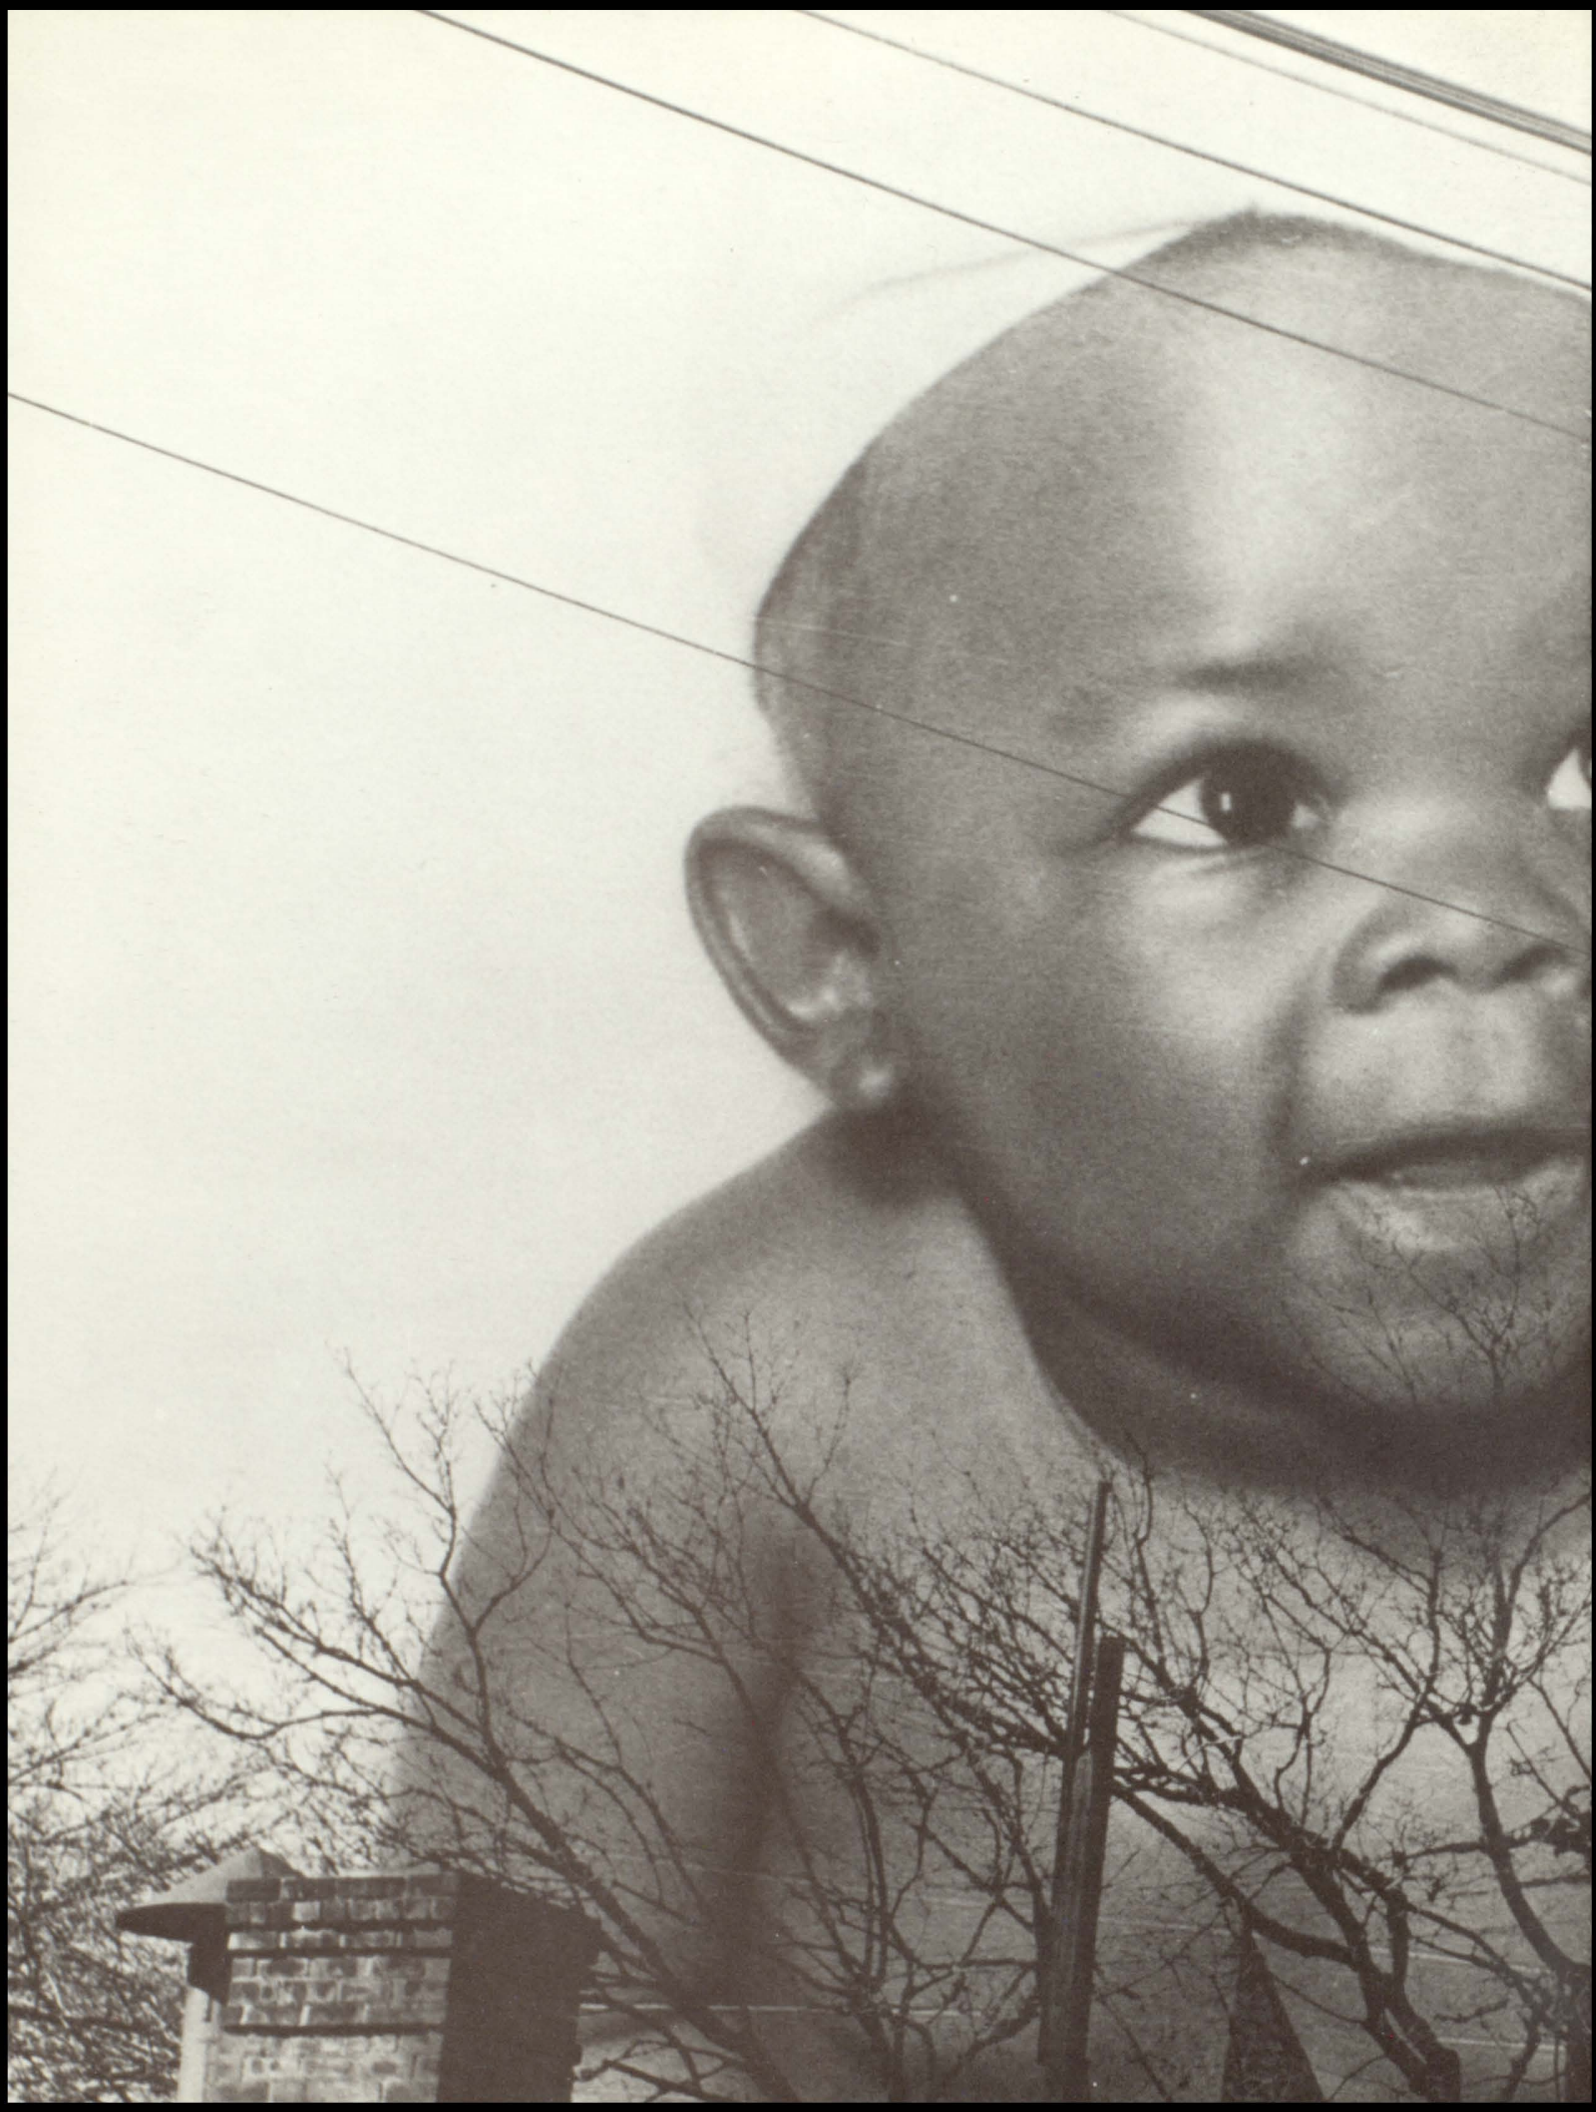

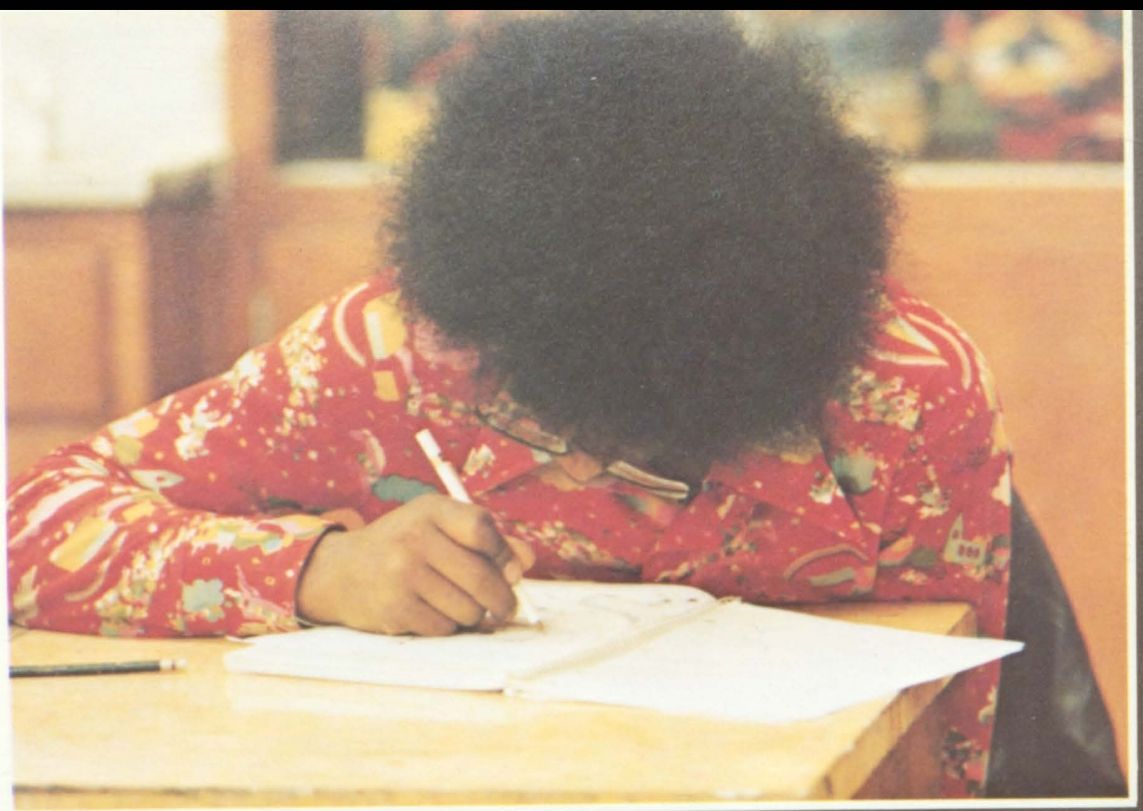

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;

If you can dream--and not make dreams your master;
If you can think--and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build'em up with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you Except the Will which says to them: "Hold on!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings--nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And--which is more--You'll be a Man, my son!

---Rudyard Kipling

ARS POETICA

A poem should be palpable and mute
 As globed fruit
 Dumb
 As old medallions to the thumb
 Silent as the sleeve-worn stone
 Of casement ledges where the moss has grown--
 A poem should be wordless
 As the flight of birds
 A poem should be motionless in time
 As the moon climbs
 Leaving, as the moon releases
 Twig by twig the night-entangled trees,
 Leaving, as the moon behind the winter leaves,
 Memory by memory the mind--
 A poem should be equal to:
 Not true
 For all the history of grief
 An empty doorway and a maple leaf
 For love
 The leaning grasses and two lights above the sea--
 A poem should not mean
 But be.

Gas! Gas! Gas! The day's main task
To sifen and consume
People's time, we presume.
Ditching in line
To save ample time.
The population has exploded
License plates now are coded.
The fuel is lacking
As time is slacking.
Exploited by prices
And "no gas" signs
Citizens complain as they wait in long lines.

Be patient, because, as things work out
The lines will shorten, shorten right out!

Equitable's
"Life Insurance for the Younger Generation" Program can mean tax advantages for you.

When you purchase an Equitable life insurance policy for a youngster who's special to you—your own son or daughter, grandchild, godchild, niece or nephew—both of you benefit.

The child gets a head start on building a sound protection program. And, if he assumes the premium payments at a later date, he enjoys the same low rate that was in effect for his age when you purchased the policy.

On the other hand, your gift may qualify for the annual gift-tax exclusion. And, by making the premium payments, you may reduce the size of your estate and Federal estate tax.

Many policies are available under Equitable's "Life Insurance for the Younger Generation" Program. For more information on the tax aspects of the Program and details on which policies best meet your objectives, call or write:

BARRINGER GET
NOT TO WEAR SCHOOL

Can this world be a masquerade?
Are you really what we see on the Outside and hidin' what you really
Are on the inside.
Pretendin' that you're something you're really not.
Whole world is a masquerade.
Everybody, everybody wears another face.

Can't you see, what you really are?
Pretendin' that you want the world,
To be a better place,
Fightin', makin' war on your fellow Man
So why wear this face that makes it seem Everything's so great?
Whole world is a masquerade
Everybody, everybody wears another face.

To look at nature is to love.
You pity the quivering grass,
Always trampled on.
The sun brings joy and goodness
to the soul,
And the night is bursting excitement.
The complexity of a tree
Fills the heart with puzzlement
And the birth of a flower
Is ecstasy...

Always reaching out for the lost world of childhood.

Gas Shortage Relief

Over many a city old,
Famed in song and story
Temple grey and castle hold
Catch the sunset glory.
So our Alma Mater proud
Looks o'er vale and meadow
High between the sailing cloud
And its drifting shadows.

For her colors, first the blue of the April valley's
Then December's wintry here
When the storm winds rally.
Barringer, the fame we raise,
Many voices blending;
Through the years we pledge the praise
Loyal to life's ending.

Junius W. Stevens, 1924

Friends, Teachers, Activities...everyone remembers those. No one can forget the good times and the laughter. The parties...the football games...the cutting...the Spring days in the park...the corny jokes of the faculty--it was always chuckle or fail!

But neither can we forget the bad times. The times of hatred and fear and prejudice. These were the unhappy moments in Barringer. The moments when we looked to each other for help and understanding. They are gone now. With our newfound maturity we conquered the ignorance and misunderstanding. We became too proud of our spirit of Brotherhood to submit to a foolish hatred. We've become ready to face reality because we've already seen it in Barringer.

Those times didn't spoil our years in any way. We grew because of them. We learned to solve problems as a whole. We learned to live and work with all peoples of all nationalities. This was the greatest learning experience of all.

Turning through these pages, we see that this book represents four long years of our lives. Years that when we started seemed so far away. This is our time, Class of 1974; there has been no other class like it in the 136 years of Barringer's existence and there will be none like it in the future because we are unique. We must say goodbye, but don't think it won't be hard. We will miss each other more than anything else.

And now, as we get ready to leave Barringer, we look back on all this. We don't see the years split up into "bad" and "good". We see a wonderful time of growth and learning. Taken in this light, all times were happy. Thank you, Barringer, for teaching us about life.
